

Identifying Gifted Pupils

Pupils who are talented in art and design are likely to:

	think and express themselves in creative, original ways they want to follow a different plan to the other pupils, challenge the tasks given, or extend the brief in seemingly unrelated or fantastic directions
	have a strong desire to create in a visual form they are driven by ideas, imagination, flights of fancy, humanitarian concerns, humour or personal experience; they persevere until they have completed a task successfully, with little or no intervention from the teacher
	push the boundaries of normal processes they test ideas and solve problems relating to concepts and issues; they explore ways to depict ideas, emotions, feelings and meanings; they take risks without knowing what the outcome will be; they change ideas to take into account new influences or outcomes
	show a passionate interest in the world of art and design they are often interested in a specific culture (possibly relating to their own cultural background or sense of identity), particular art forms, contemporary culture or youth culture
	use materials, tools and techniques skilfully and learn new approaches easily they are keen to extend their technical abilities and sometimes get frustrated when other skills do not develop at the same time
	initiate ideas and define problems they explore ideas, problems and sources on their own and collaboratively, with a sense of purpose and meaning
	critically evaluate visual work and other information they make unusual connections between their own and others' work; they apply ideas to their own work in innovative ways
	exploit the characteristics of materials and processes they use materials and processes in creative, practical and inventive ways; they explore alternatives and respond to new possibilities and meanings
	understand that ideas and meanings in their own and others' work can be interpreted in different ways they use their knowledge and understanding to extend their own thinking and realise their intentions; they communicate original ideas, insights and views
